This week in reading we are continuing learning how to strengthen our reading skills and connectiong to the characters and settings.

This week in writing we are continuing our opinion writing unit. Please continue helping your child practice opinion statements. We will be using the sentence format: “I think ______, because ______.” We are learning that our opinions will be different from others and that is okay. We are also learning that we can disagree with one another but still respect one another’s opinions.

This week in math we are continuing learning how to fluently add and subtract numbers 0-5. We will use larger numbers for students that need more of a challenge.

We are also learning about the parts and the whole of a number.
